DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

1. In view of the After Final Amendment filed on April 27, 2005, the final rejection is hereby rescinded and prosecution is reopened. New grounds of rejection are set forth below.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 6-10 and 61, 63 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Niermann '974 in view of Samuelson '238. Niermann '974 shows a tape dispenser comprising an annular support, 44, for a roll of tape and a radially extending dispensing arm, 56, having a top and a bottom, said bottom including a tape guide along which tape is dispensed, the tape guide having an outer end, laterally spaced apart opposite sides and a central portion, 78, between and spaced below said sides for imparting a concave contour to the tape. Niermann '974 further shows a tape applicator, 90, with a serrated cutting edge, 88, forward of the outer end of the bottom. Niermann '974 fails to show ribs.

Samuelson '238 shows a tape dispenser with four parallel, longitudinally extending ribs, 22, projecting from the bottom, 17, of the dispensing arm (column 3, lines 1-14). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to add the ribs of Samuelson '238 into the apparatus of Niermann '974 because Samuelson '238 shows these ribs to be useful for holding the cutting blade and because the ribs would add structural stability to the dispensing arm.

Regarding claims 7, 9-10, 61 Samuelson '238 also shows tape retaining tabs, 30, with tape retaining surfaces, 32. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to add the tape retaining tabs of Samuelson in to the apparatus of Niermann '974 because Samuelson shows that tabs help maintain the cut end of the tape adjacent the guide surface and out of contact of the surface of the roll when not in use (column 6, lines 2-19).

Regarding claim 63, the arcuate wall, 34, of Samuelson '238 is movable toward the tape roll to provide a braking function (column 5, lines 23-30). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to add the brake of Samuelson '238 into the apparatus of Niermann '974 to completely stop the dispensing of the tape during tape cutting.

4. Claim 64 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Niermann '974 in view of Samuelson '238 as applied to claim 63 above, and further in view of Lin '375. Lin show a tape dispenser with a manually operable brake of compressible plates 33A and 33B pressing a portion of a wall against the hub. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to add the known brake of Lin into the apparatus of the references as combined because braking of the roll prevents free wheeling of the tape (column 3, lines 20-43).

Allowable Subject Matter

5. Claims 11, 12 and 62 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

6. Claims 17-18, 20-25, 31-42, 44, and 64-70 allowed.

7. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: None of the prior art, either alone or in combination suggest the instantly claimed limitations. In particular, the ribs terminating adjacent the tape retaining tabs or converging sides of the tape arm are not shown.

Conclusion

8. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. The reference to Chandaria shows a tape dispenser with parallel extending ribs on the dispensing arm.
